So what's the deal with [product name]? (See the truth inside...)

EMAIL BODY:

Hi [First Name],

You've heard everyone and their brother talking about [Product Name]. They're saying it's the best way to [get some great benefit] and [get some other great benefit].

But you're sitting on the fence because you have a few questions. Here are some answers...

What does [Product Name] do?

Simply put, this product [describe exactly what it does for the customer].

Will this work for you?

It almost sounds too good to be true, right? You've heard so many people talking about their good results that you can't help but be skeptical.

The claims are true. And here's your proof [insert your most compelling proof, such as a case study, a "before" and "after" picture or video, a persuasive set of testimonials, etc].

Based on all that, I'm 99% certain this will work for you too.

But you know what? There is absolutely no risk to giving it a try. That's because [Product Name] is backed by a 100% money-back guarantee. If it doesn't work, you get a refund with no questions asked.

Fair enough?

See the guarantee for yourself at [sales page link]. That's pretty iron-clad, so buy with confidence.

[Insert any objections that are specific to the product, and then answer those objections. For example, are some worried about a book being too short? That might be an objection, but you can turn it into a positive by talking about how the book is for busy people, or how it contains all meat and no filler. So look for ways to turn perceived liabilities into assets.]
