

How To Start

1. Create a Google Ads account: If you haven't already, create a Google Ads account at ads.google.com. This is where you'll be setting up and managing your YouTube ads.
2. Set up a YouTube channel: If you don't have a YouTube channel, create one. This is where your ads will be displayed.
3. Create a campaign: In Google Ads, create a new campaign and choose the "Video" campaign type. You can then choose your campaign goal, such as driving website traffic or generating leads.
4. Set your budget and targeting: Set your daily budget and choose your targeting options. You can target based on demographics, interests, and behaviors.
5. Create your ad: You can create a video ad by uploading a video to your YouTube channel or by creating one using Google's AdWords Editor. Make sure your ad is engaging and relevant to your target audience.
6. Set your bid and launch your ad: Set your bid for your ad and launch your campaign. Monitor your ad's performance and adjust your targeting, bidding, and ad content as needed.
7. Measure and optimize: Use Google Ads' reporting tools to measure your ad's performance and optimize your campaign over time.

Some additional tips:

- Keep your ad short and to the point. People have short attention spans, so make sure your ad captures their attention quickly.
- Use clear and compelling visuals to convey your message.
- Make sure your ad has a clear call-to-action (CTA) that tells people what to do next.
- Test different targeting options and ad content to see what works best for your audience.
- Monitor your campaign closely and adjust your bidding and targeting as needed to maximize your ad's performance.

Marketing Tips

1. Use custom intent audiences: Custom intent audiences allow you to target people who have recently searched for keywords related to your business. This can help ensure that your ads are shown to people who are actively looking for what you offer.
2. Test different ad formats: YouTube offers a variety of ad formats, including in-stream ads, discovery ads, and bumper ads. Test different formats to see which ones work best for your business.
3. Use retargeting: Retargeting allows you to show ads to people who have already interacted with your business, such as by visiting your website or watching your videos. This can help keep your brand top of mind and encourage people to take action.
4. Use remarketing lists for search ads (RLSA): RLSA allows you to show ads to people who have previously interacted with your business when they search for keywords related to your products or services on Google. This can help you reach people who are further along in the buying process.
5. Use YouTube Analytics: YouTube Analytics can provide valuable insights into how people are interacting with your videos and ads. Use this information to optimize your targeting, messaging, and ad content.
6. Test different bidding strategies: YouTube offers different bidding strategies, including cost-per-view (CPV) and cost-per-impression (CPM). Test different strategies to see which ones work best for your business goals.
7. Use video remarketing: Video remarketing allows you to show ads to people who have previously watched your videos on YouTube. This can help you reach people who are already familiar with your brand and encourage them to take action.
8. Use call-to-action overlays: Call-to-action overlays can be added to your video ads to encourage people to take action, such as by visiting your website or subscribing to your channel. Test different calls-to-action to see which ones drive the most conversions.
9. Use YouTube Director Onsite: YouTube Director Onsite is a free service that connects businesses with professional filmmakers who can create high-quality video ads. This can be a great option for businesses that don't have the resources to create their own ads.
10. Keep testing and optimizing: YouTube Ads can be a powerful tool for driving business results, but it's important to keep testing and optimizing your campaigns over time to ensure you're getting the best possible results. Use the data and insights available to you to make informed decisions about your targeting, messaging, and bidding strategies.
